MESSAGE CLARITY AND CONFIDENCE

What is the message that comes through for you, and continues to come through for you, most often? Whether it's in the form of repeated themes in your journaling, nudges and inspiration you receive, downloads you get, what is that underlying thread? What is that consistent message that comes through when you're tuned in to yourself? It may be simple. It may not make complete sense. Don't overcomplicate it.

If you knew, and trusted, that with everything you already know, everything that already wants to come through you, is good enough... what would you be selling or sharing with the world from that place?

If you fully trusted in your message and in yourself and stepped into that next level version of yourself you are BEcoming right now what would you be creating and doing?

What is the transformation you want to help facilitate in others that supports this message?

How does your unique mix of skills, talents, gifts, knowledge, and experience help enable you to help facilitate this transformation in others?

What already makes you the ideal person to support them with this?

How do you want to deliver this message? How do you want to show up in a way that feels good to you? What are the aspects of your personality that you want to bring to your messaging and your business?